Champagne falls somewhere between the two ideas of the perfect trip abroad.

“However, in my experience, a weekend in Champagne is one of the most special things you could do in your life and anyone watching the film will see that. We want the film to have a dual purpose – to act as escapism for audiences and also for them to get that wanderlust to explore what it is about France we all love, something that may have been lost during a fractious time. The film is intended to be
